

Japan-Asia Research Community Network (JARC-Net)

Strategic Program for Building an Asian Science and Technology Community

Funded under the Asia Science and Technology Strategic Cooperation Program,
Special Coordination Funds for Promoting Science and Technology,
Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology

Description

The Japan-Asia Research Community Network (“JARC-Net”) is a database of researchers and experts who are interested in research cooperation between Japan and other Asian countries/areas. By registering, you will be able to search and browse other members’ profiles.

JARC-Net helps you to find colleagues and new research partners, and to build and strengthen research networks within Asia.

Services for Registered Members

- Searching and browsing other members’ profiles
- Receiving JSPS information service (event and program information)
- Transmitting information to other members (with JSPS’s approval)

Member Site (sample)

Targeted Users

- Asian researchers and experts who have studied and/or stayed in Japan
- Asian researchers and experts who have interests in research cooperation with Japan
- Japanese researchers and experts who have interests in research cooperation with countries/areas in Asia

In addition, JSPS welcomes registration by other interested people, such as current graduate students, staffs of universities/research institutions, and policy experts.

Information Category

- Basic Information: Name, position, institution, research fields, etc.
- Background Information: Education, professional experience, selected publications, etc.
- Affiliation with Japan: International cooperation experience with Japan, etc.

Example of Network Usage

- By searching and browsing other members’ profiles, you can find researchers with research topics similar to your own, and/or alumni of your university in yours or other countries/areas.
- By putting information into your profile and/or sending it to members via JSPS’s information service, you can inform other members of your research projects or conferences you organized.
