■ Promotion of Student-Mobility Environment

① For outbound students

A website has been created to provide prospective students with abundant information on host universities so that they might begin their preparations for studying abroad at the appropriate time. Frequent sessions are organized to brief students on overseas education. Efforts will be made to improve students' linguistic abilities via seminars, international training, and other means, and a liaison office for Kyoto University will be established within the AUN.

② For inbound students

A website has been created to provide the universities concerned with abundant information on Kyoto University's faculties and graduate schools, including program contents, syllabi, credit recognition. In addition, existing systems and facilities are used to provide international students with consultation services and accommodations at Kyoto University.

■ Internationalization of the university, information disclosure and Publication of outcome

① Conclusion of agreements

The Graduate School of Agriculture concluded a student exchange agreement with CTU before accepting students for SDP.

② Information disclosure and Publication of outcome
