【Name of project】(Adopted year: FY2012, Category Ⅰ)
　Six-University Coordinated Service-Learning Program in Rural Communities in Japan and Indonesia
【Aim of project, Ideals of Global Human Resource on the project】
Train international 'servant leaders' who, by supporting primary industry at the regional level, will contribute to sustainability for future society.
【Summary of project】Students in the undergraduate course of the Japan/Indonesia 6-university (SUIJI) consortium will live 1 week to 3 months in a local community and participate in themed service learning. Joint degree and double degree programs are offered to graduate students in the field of agriculture.

■ Forming the University Network with Quality Assurance

〈After the renewal of the MoA〉

○ An MoA "An Agreement for a SUIJI Consortium for Sustainable Agriculture in the Tropics" was renewed by the SUIJI Consortium
The 6 member universities from Indonesia and Japan renewed the MoA and agreed to strengthen their collaboration and future activities at the SUIJI Seminar.
○ With the cooperation of the 6 universities a rubric is being created for the student evaluation of the service learning program (SLP)
Based on 3 years of actual practice, the expected outcomes for students who join the SLP was concentrated to 5. Creation of a rubric using more concrete evaluation criteria has been developed. The evaluation criteria has been used for grading.
○ 3rd External Evaluation carried out Jan. 2015
A committee of outside experts reviewed the program, provided advice for continuity of this program and shared information on similar programs.
