(in Japanese)

Lecture summary (講演概要):

Students in Ena High School prepared their interested topics and asked me to make comments after their presentations. Ten teams including 40 students made talks on various subjects, such as deforestation, refugees, children soldiers and food problems. Students collected enough information relating to each topic and made well organized presentations. I made 30 min comments after their presentation and added note to each of their slides. The lecture encouraged communication between students and foreign researchers as the School organizer planned.
