- Lecture summary (講演概要): Please summary your lecture 200-500 words.
Within this lecture I introduced students to how anthropologists study issues such as migration. I firstly introduce where I come from (Australia) and explained to students how growing up in a multicultural society inspired me to become interested in how culture shapes human behaviour. After explaining some of the basic methodologies of anthropology, I went on to explain my previous research on the Chinatown proposal in Ikebukuro in 2008, and how this connects to my current research on Chinese migrant media use and its relationship to political opinion. Showing how both these topics relate to concepts of 'belonging' 帰属感 I then engaged students in a range of research activities designed to explore themes of movement and belonging. This included finding out the patterns of domestic migration among their fellow classmates (does your family come from Toyama?) to group activities discussing what is important to their sense of belonging.
